Steven Uncles, 42, was born in the area and brought up in Bexley and he was educated at Chislehurst & Sidcup Grammar School. He is married to Louise with a daughter and son, and lives in Wilmington, Kent, he is self-employed.

A keen local rugby player until the age of 40, Steve decided to enter the political "scrum" in 2004 and stood for the English Democrats in the European Elections gaining 29,126 votes.

KENT OR LONDON?

Steve says:- "As I was brought up in the area, I am aware that when Bromley and Chislehurst were annexed by Greater London in 1965, without any democratic mandate, many of our people were unhappy but now this is also hitting us in our pockets, as the Greater London Authority's Council Tax element is rising by 13.35%, but if we were still in Kent, the increase would be only 4.75%".

The English Democrats recognize that many local people regard Bromley and Chislehurst as part of Kent, not part of London. We propose to campaign for a referendum on whether our people would prefer to be administered by Kent County Council rather than by the London Assembly, as part of our policy of maintaining our traditional English Counties.

PUTTING ENGLAND FIRST!

The English Democrats Party is a democratic party launched, in 2002, by people worried about England's future.

We are English patriots and we are campaigning for our liberties and for our rights to live as a sovereign nation in freedom and democracy. We want to reclaim control over our borders from the European Union.

Blair's Labour gave the Scots a Parliament, stating that they are a "proud and historic nation" but "there is no such nationality as English" has been John Prescott's response to any demands for recognition of our own proud and historic nation. We reject this discrimination.

We want to make St George's Day a Bank Holiday.

We want a strong, democratic England, united and governed by its own people, from an English Parliament within the UK.

Have you wondered about:

- Is it right that England is now the only Nation within Europe without its own Parliament?
- Should Scottish MPs be ministers for English only Departments: like Douglas Alexander at English Transport and John Reid at our English Home Office?
- Why did Gordon Brown, with Conservative & Unionist and Liberal Democrat support, spend £8,096 on every person in Scotland but in the South Eastern "Region" of England, he only spent £5,837?
- Is it proper that, under the Barnett Formula, Scots should now have better education, transport and health care, free residential care, bus passes for the elderly, student grants and no top-up fees; all at the expense of the long suffering English taxpayer? Is this the real North/South divide?
- Why should St Patrick's Day receive a subsidy of £100,000 from London's Mayor, but not St George's Day?
- Why were "Top-Up" fees inflicted on English students by votes from Labour's Scottish and Welsh MPs, when in Wales and Scotland they had been rejected?
- What is your response to the recent statement of Tony Blair's unelected, fellow Scottish school friend, Lord Charlie Falconer, the current Lord Chancellor:- "to the idea of an English Parliament, (Labour) say(s) – not today, not tomorrow, not in any kind of future we can see now"?

English Democrats say - only a Parliament for England will fairly settle the unfair constitutional mess that we are now in and also ensure that our politicians give proper attention to our Nation's needs,
